

Songlines/ Adamo

Residents of Mons sing, whistle or whisper the song "Tombe la neige" by Adamo. This song consisting of 50 different singers is then synchronized to 1 song. The song resounds in choir with different individual styles, in two languages ... a multicultural deep human mix.

We photograph these people in close up with their eyes closed, open or covering the eyes with their hands.

The images are projected on canvases and clothes that are hung in the length of a street. The sound can be heard from 50 different sound boxes that each sound an individual voice.

The street is recreated in an identity full of passion and surreality that is never aggressive but radiates with a tender sentimentality.
